MISS LLORA HOFFMAN CONCERT SOPRANO

One of America's Noted Artists to Sing at Commencement on June 16.

The college has arranged a most attractive program for Commencement week, but the feature which will in all probability be the greatest attraction is the concert scheduled for Saturday evening, June 16, in the Mead Memorial Chapel. It is announced that this concert is by far the highest class entertainment of its kind that the college has heretofore secured, and a heavy expense has been involved in procuring the entertainers who will be Miss Llora Hoffman, the prima donna soprano star, and the Tollefsen Trio, mentioned elsewhere in this issue.

Miss Hoffman deserves special consideration. It is rare indeed that an artist of her calibre performs before an audience in Middlebury, or any place of like size. Her quality is perhaps best expressed in a statement in "Musical America" for October 28, 1916: "With neither information divulged as to her former successes nor blare of heralding trumpets, Llora Hoffman was introduced to New York's musical public last week and created one of the finest impressions that a new singer has made in New York in the last few years. Her absolute simplicity and lovely personality won her immediately her audience's favor and when she had sung her opening song, Schumann's "Stille Thranen", with which few singers dare open a program, her hearers were convinced that one of the rarest of new exponents of vocal art was before them."

Tickets for the concert will be on sale at Frost's Pharmacy, exclusively, at 3 o'clock in the afternoon of June 9. The admission price will be $1.00. All seats are reserved, and alumni and visitors may readily secure reservations through the mail by sending direct to the above address.

OLD MIDD EVENS UP WITH VERMONT BY WINNING 14 INNING GAME 4-3

Maul Makes Two Runs for the Blue and White on Centennial Field. Satterlee Holds Strong Against Palmer. Memorial Day Made Memorable

A week ago today Middlebury College defeated the University of Vermont baseball team by the score of 4 to 3 in a fourteen inning contest at Burlington. Smarting under the 7 to 0 defeat of two weeks ago, the boys of the blue and white played the best game of ball seen in this state for a number of years. Every man on the team centered his entire soul on the game and felt confident of a victory, yet realized he was facing very worthy opponents. After a long spell of cold and rain, the sun sent its warm rays down on Centennial Field and made the day an ideal one for an excellent baseball game.

The opponents were quite astonished to see Coach Murch send a man into the box who was entirely unknown to them. That man was Big Bill Satterlee, who has been absent from college for a short time. He certainly was the hero of the day, allowing but eight hits in the entire fourteen innings. As he had not been practicing with the team for a couple of weeks, his pitching was not his best in the first few innings but the longer he worked the better became his playing. At the end of the game he was going at top-notch form and was good for several innings more. For the losers, Palmer pitched a fine game but he was found for some costly hits.

From the very start Middlebury was in for all that could be got from the game, while U. V. M. was weakened by its apparent over-confidence. Maul singled at the start. Moran made a sacrifice bunt which Bowman attempted to turn into a double play, but Pike's brain refused to work correctly, and, instead of tagging Maul, he only touched the base. Freeland sacrificed to Palmer, advancing Maul to third. Next came the mighty Jake Deufel. Matters looked rather dubious to Palmer, and he consequently decided to pass Jake, who stole second on the next ball pitched. Courtney made a clean hit to right field which scored Maul and Deufel. Bartlett hit to the pitcher for the third out.

The third inning witnessed Vermont making its first tally. With two out, Palmer singled. He scored on Bowman's long three base hit to right field.

In the fourth, Middlebury scored another run. Courtney got two bases on a muffed fly into right field, and went to third on Bartlett's sacrifice; Ahern knocked in the run. Satterlee worked Palmer for a hit into left field, but Maul failed to send another run across.

In the last half of the fourth, Vermont managed to tie the score on Pollard's error. Bell slammed out a long hit to left field that looked good for at least three bases, but Courtney, with his characteristic agility and wonderful throwing arm, held the runner at second. Hackett got on base by Ahern's error. Pollard muffed Hamilton's long hit to right field after a brisk run. Bell and Hackett reached home on this play, tying the score amid loud cheers from the Vermont bleachers.

Satterlee tightened up after this inning, and both teams played excellent ball for the succeeding ten innings, neither side scoring, and seldom an inning passed without one or two men getting on bases. Time after time the two teams pulled themselves out of bad holes. These innings were tense ones for the spectators.

In the fourteenth, Middlebury came through and secured the winning run. Maul started the inning by drawing a pass from Palmer. Moran sacrificed, advancing Eddie to second. He made third on a passed ball by Hamilton. With two down Deufel hit to short stop. Bowman dropped Bell's throw and Maul was safe at home. Vermont went out in easy order and little Middlebury had trimmed the University.

Every man on the team is to be given credit for this game. They worked together in regular team fashion, sacrificing and advancing team-mates at every possible instance. In the field they also played a fine game in spite of a few errors. Special mention should be made of Maul, who has been playing third base since Bresnahan left college last month to go to Plattsburg. This little fellow made the spectators sit up and take notice when he made a sensational, unassisted double play in the first U. V. M. game. Since then he has proven himself invaluable to his team. His fine playing in last Wednesday's game, when he scored both the first and last runs, will be remembered for some time at the "college on the hill".

PLATTSBURG LETTER FROM ARTHUR VAUGHN

Sends Interesting Account of Life at the Training Camp.

Plattsburg spells work and plenty of it for every man here. The common saying that "there is no rest for the weary" is distinctly emphasized when one glances over the full schedule prescribed for the days work.

We rise at five-thirty, having but a few minutes to get dressed and washed before reveille blows. Every man is on the jump from the first blast, for it is absolutely compulsory to report on time—no sleepovers or cuts are given. Breakfast is at six in long shacks crudely built with just a roof for shelter and a dirt floor, but the most welcome place of all three times a day—providing the "mess" is fair.

Morning instruction and drill begins at seven, lasting for five long hours of constant work under our company commanders. This drill consists of marching and its formation, gun drills, physical drills, manual of the bayonet, etc., Dinner is at twelve-fifteen followed by the afternoon instruction consisting of signalling with semaphore and flag, gun sighting and aiming exercises, and a conference and study for an hour. "Retreat" blows at 5:59 at which time the company stands at parade rest while the flag is lowered for the night. Supper is at six and then the hardest and most tiresome work of the day begins.

At seven each company of the New England Regiment is marched into the immense gymnasium where table, desks and chairs are provided for the entire 2500 men. We study here each night for two hours and it is not an infrequent sight to see many of the boys fast asleep at their desks completely tired out and incapable of further work.

The life is great, tho, but is as I said exceedingly strenuous and men must keep themselves in excellent physical trim to stand the strain. All are in earnest with their work realizing the goal toward which they are striving is for the help of the nation in its time of stress and the men work with a pride and zest which is highly commendable.

Saturday is used by the captains to complete any work that was not finished in a satisfactory manner during the week.

For one hour on this day we have inspection of the barracks, guns, etc., and at this time there is much hustling to get everything in order and in its right place. The motto for military life is "a place for everything, and everything in its place" and it's there, too, or the captain learns the reason why.

The barracks themselves are about three hundred feet long and twenty feet in width. On both sides of the building, which is constructed of boards with plenty of air space between them, is a long line of double deck bunks which are fitted out completely with blankets, mattresses, etc., but for springs we use boards with the soft side up—a little hard for a person who is not very tired but a most welcome place for all of us. Lights are out at 9: 45

EDITORIAL.

The succeeding issue of The Campus will be the last of the present college year, and we wish to make it as representative of the college and its activities as possible. It will of necessity be colored by the ever-present atmosphere of war, but in addition we hope to instill a little of the brighter side of our eventful college days. Often the last impression is the most enduring, and for the class of nineteen hundred and seventeen we would make it as pleasant and at the same time as real as possible. In so far as we are able in the limited space allotted us we will include a rapid survey of the events of the past year, yet it is inevitable that the attempt will at best be an approximation.

It will be a matter of disappoint ment to some that our last number is not not listed after the Commencement exercises, but our present finances will not warrant it. An attempt will be made to make the previous account of the exercises as realistic as possible, but beyond that we can promise nothing. As indicated elsewhere in this number, the college has arranged for an exceptionally fine series of events considering the stress of war, and it will be a matter of much gratification to us if a large number of alumni return to enjoy them.

To Be, Or Not to Be?

Quiet hours in Pearsons Hall? Oh Yes! We used to have them in 1915 and we are supposed to have them now, but nobody ever pays any attention to them. Why not? Whose fault is it? Is the president of Student Government to blame? No, the fault is yours. When do you ever bother to go up to the third floor after a friend when it's so easy to shout her name from the first floor? Why bother to shut your door when it's as easy to let it slam? Why walk lightly when you can make such a beautiful noise tramping down the corridors? Why not have a quiet little game of leap-frog in the hall at 10:30 p. m.? Have you been an offender?

When a girl breaks the walking or driving rules she is severely punished, but quiet hours are broken all the time and nothing happens except that a few people who try to study or rest are seriously inconvenienced. You say the walking rule is important, but this one isn't, If a rule isn't important enough to be kept, why have it? Why not do away with the rule or keep it? Examination time is coming; Which would you prefer?

JAPANESE OPERETTA PRESENTED IN McCULLOUGH GYMNASIUM

"The Japanese Girl" Makes Hit with Large Audience.

Thursday evening, May 31, the operetta entitled "The Japanese Girl" was presented by the Women's Musical Organization under the direction of Professor Hathaway. The characters in the play were:

O Hanu San, A Japanese Girl of position
Ruth Cann

O Kitu San, Her cousin
Janet Johnson

O Kayo San, Her cousin
Margaret Harris

Chaya, Her servant
Johanna Begiebing

Nora Twinn, Dora Twinn } Young American ladies travelling with governess
Ruth Alger, Miriam Kempton

Miss Minerva Knowall, Governess
Helen Linnell

Chorus of Japanese Girls

The first act opens with the visit of Japanese girls to O Hanu San, who is about to celebrate her eighteenth birthday, or coming of age.

The story is told in dialogue and songs, and contains many amusing and interesting situations.

In the seoond act, two American girls who are touring Japan with their governess are impelled by curiosity to enter the garden, slipping away from their governess.

The Japanese girls, returning, resent the intrusion of a foreigner and awake the governess, pretending not to understand her explanations. O Hanu San comes to the rescue and invites the Americans to remain at her home for the ceremonies which are commencing.

All of the characters were taken in a most pleasing manner, the work of Miss Cann being especially commendable. Owing to the illness of Miss Frary, who had the role of Nora, Miss Alger took the part, and the leading role was assigned to Miss Cann who took it at a moment's notice. The costumes and scenery were very attractive, everything being true to the nature of the operetta. A feature which was enthusiastically received by the audience was the Japanese dance in the second act.

This operetta is the first affair of the kind to be given in Middlebury for several years, and it is hoped that it will not be the last. Much credit is due to those who worked so hard to make it a success, the director, Professor Hathaway, Professor Burrage, Mrs. Noble, who trained the dancers, and Violet Richardson '17, president of the Musical Association.

Gamaliel Painter's Cane.

I

When Gamaliel Painter died
He was Middlebury's pride—
A sturdy pioneer without a stain;
And he left his all by will
To the college on the hill,
And included in a codicil a cane.

CHORUS:

Oh, it's rap-rap,
And it's tap-tap,
If you listen you can hear it sounding plain;
For a helper true and tried,
As the generations glide,
There is nothing like Gamaliel Painter's cane.

II

Oh, his blessed bones are hid
'Neath a marble pyramid,
Forever there in honor to remain;
But he built us Painter Hall,
Noblest monument of all,
And he left to us his courage in his cane.

CHORUS:

Oh, it's rap-rap,
And it's tap-tap,
If you listen—— ——

III

So let every son of Midd
Strive to do as Painter did—
Let him cultivate his muscle and his brain;
When there's studying to do,
Or a center to go through,
Let him summon up the courage of the cane.

CHORUS:

Oh, it's rap-rap,
And it's tap-tap,
If you listen—— ——

IV

And our brothers by the lake,
Oh, they shiver and they shake,
And their shivering is easy to explain:
We have trimmed them in the past,
We will trim them to the last,
For we conquer in the courage of the cane.

CHORUS:

Oh, it's rap-rap,
And it's tap-tap,
If you listen —— ——

FRESHMEN TRIM SOPHOMORES

The freshmen trimmed the sophomores in two whirlwind games of baseball last Wednesday morning on Porter Field. The sensations of the games were the high dives that a few of the fellows took into the puddle bordering second base. The games were played under most unfavorable circumstances. The home plate was the center of a pool of mud in which two small boards were placed for the batter to stand on. A few batters slipped from the boards but were promptly rescued by their team-mates. The only bat was broken so that it had to be held by the middle. When the last ball lost its cover, hopes for a finished game were almost shattered, but, at the crucial moment, Simmie Murch happened along and donated a couple of regulars. Aside from these minor inconveniences the double-header was pulled off without very much excitement.

Not contented with losing the first game 5 to 2, the sophomores wanted to play another. When the score stood 7 to 1 against them in the third inning of the second, they suddenly discovered it was time for dinner.

Three freshmen umpires assisted the lower class team to win.

ALUMNI NOTES

'93. E. R. Sturtevant of Chicago has been spending a few days in Middlebury.

'09. Dr. D. M. Shewbrooks, Asst. Med. Director of the Northwestern National Life Insurance Co. of Minneapolis, has just received a commission as captain in the Medical Section of the Officers' Reserve Corps of the U. S. Army. Monday evening, May 21, Dr. Shewbrooks gave a stereopticon lecture before the Hannepin County Medical Society at their annual dinner on his experiences as a member of the Serbian Red Cross during the typhus epidemic of 1915-16.

'15. Thomas H. Ormsbee has been admitted to the Reserve Officers' Training Corps at Harvard University. He is hoping to go to one of the Plattsburg camps later.

'15. Adelaide Ross spent the week-end on the hill.

Elbert Cole '15, Clarence Cole ex-'15, and Harry Rainear ex-'19 are serving in the army, but their actual positions of service are not definitely known.

'16. Mertice James of Madison, N. J., visited friends on the hill Sunday and Monday.

Ex-'19. Harold Whipple is with Co. M, 1st Vermont National Guard at Wells River.

COLLEGE NOTES.

Alice Chynoweth '18 enjoyed a visit from her father Sunday.

John K. Cheesman '19 spent the week-end at his home in South Orange, N. J.

Ruth Cann '19 spent Sunday in East Middlebury at the home of Marion Elmer '18.

Arthur T. Vaughn and Eugene Hubbard of the Plattsburg Camp spent Sunday in Middlebury.

Ruth Clark '19 entertained her cousin, Hazel Bullis of New York, for a few days the past week.

On Friday evening, June 1, the Senior Tri-Delta girls were entertained in the Delta Delta Delta rooms at a dinner given by the undergraduates of the chapter.

Douglas Esten '17, who has been absent for some time on farm work, has been called to Boston by the Naval Reserve Corps.

Harold Hollister '17 has returned to college for the final examinations after a few weeks absence. He has been acting as a supervising physical director in New York state.

Friday noon, June 1, a short meeting of the Student Government Association was held in Pearsons Social Hall for the purpose of electing a representative to Silver Bay. Louise Reynolds was chosen as the delegate to the conference.

Among those who have recently left college are George W. Barnes, George Osteyee, and Herbert Brokenshire who were called to the Charlestown Navy

Yard from where they will be sent to one of the training posts for preparation for the Naval Reserve.

On June 2, Anna Rourke '17 was called to her home in Natick, Mass., by the death of her father.

The election of officers for the Wonen's Athletic Association which took place Friday evening, June 1, resulted as follows: Marion Dean, president; Doris Kendall, vice-president; Corinne Weber, secretary-treasurer; Dorothy Nash, tennis manager; Louetta Haynes, baseball manager. The following delegates were elected to Silver Bay: Elsie Monteith, Doris Kendall and Christine Webster.

On May 31 the last Y. W. C. A. meeting for the second semester was held. It was a "senior meeting" led by Marjorie Mackenzie. She read from Miss Slattery's book "A Girl and Her Religion". Alice Chynoweth played. At the close a business meeting was held at which Louetta Haynes was elected annual member for the ensuing year.

At a class meeting held Thursday, May 31, President Thomas spoke to the seniors about the giving up of class day. President Thomas was not in favor of omitting the exercises for he said that owing to the fact that the decision had not been made known at an earlier date, guests of the college would expect the usual program. He suggested that a committee be appointed to confer with Miss Ross and Dean Wright and to plan a simple program. This suggestion was adopted and William Edmunds, chairman, Dan O. Mason, and Huldah Thomas were chosen to serve on the committee.

Many of the college students attended an address given in the Memorial Baptist church on Sunday evening by Mr. Henry Israel. The service was held under the auspices of the County Y. M. C. A. Mr. Israel has recently returned from the battle front in France where he worked as a Y. M. C. A. secretary and he told most vividly of the war spirit and the suffering "on the other side."

The town of Middlebury has been canvassed during the past week by the college girls, whose object was to secure members to the Red Cross. That the work might be both thorough and efficient the town was divided into sections, each of which was assigned to two girls. The Middlebury Red Cross should embrace at least three hundred members in order that the town may fulfill its apportionment. Over one hundred new members have been secured among the townspeople while fifty-three college students have joined.

You all have probably read many accounts of the life at Plattsburg in the papers so I'll call this a go, "Buff", and wish you and all of my fellow students and profs the best of success and happiness."

Sincerely yours,

The Spires of Oxford.

Winifred M. Letts.

I saw the spires of Oxford
As I was passing by,
The gray old spires of Oxford
Against a pearl-gray sky.
My heart was with the Oxford men
Who went abroad to die.

The years go fast in Oxford,
The golden years and gay.
The hoary colleges look down
On careless boys at play.
But when the bugle sounded war
They put their games away.

They left the peaceful river,
The cricket-field, the quad,
The shaven lawns of Oxford
To seek a bloody sod—
They gave their merry youth away
For country and for God.

God rest you, happy gentlemen,
Who laid your good lives down,
Who took the khaki and the gun
Instead of cap and gown.
God bring you to a fairer place
Than even Oxford town.

EXCELLENT GAME AT WILLIAMS LOST 2-1

Satterlee Gains Five Strike-Outs With no Bases on Balls.

In one of the closest games ever played on Weston Field, at Williamstown, Williams defeated Middlebury by a score of 2 to 1, Saturday, June 2.

Good fielding by both teams was a feature of the game, only one error being recorded against each side. The Middlebury infield did wonderful work and was credited with being the best infield that Williams has met this season.

Most of the innings were brief, the men going out in order on strike-outs or infield hits.

The game began with Young, the first man up, getting a two-bagger, but he died on second, the next three men going out. Williams' two runs were made in the fourth inning on three hits and an error by Courtney.

In the sixth inning Ahern singled, but circled the bags by clever base running aided by the error of the Williams center fielder.

Middlebury's only other chance to score came in the seventh. With Deufel on second base, Courtney drove out a hot liner, but the first baseman pulled it out of the air in a remarkable catch.

Only twenty-nine men faced Foster during the game. Satterlee was credited with 5 strike-outs and Foster 2. Satterlee did not walk a man.

Banshee Initiation.

Tuesday evening, May 29, the annual initiation of Banshee was held in the Pi Beta Phi rooms. The initiates were Christine Webster, Helen Clift, Marion Dean, Dorothy Barr, Doris Kendall, Dorothy Brown, Margaret Harris, Edna Gill, Goldie Courtemanche, Elsie Foote and Elsie Monteith.

After the initiation the members of the organization went to the Addison for dinner.

Yale University is doing her share in the "preparedness" movement. At present there are two hundred and fifty undergraduates enlisted in Yale's Reserve Officers' Training Corps for artillery and steps are being taken toward the organization of a Yale Aero Corps and a Yale Motorboat Patrol.—The Bates Student.

Hubbard-Hopkins Wedding

A wedding of interest to Middlebury people occurred on May 30 in Belchertown, Mass., at the home of the bride, Miss Phyllis Hopkins. Both she and the groom, Mr. M. G. Hubbard, Jr., were of the class of 1913. In the presence of about thirty relatives and intimate friends, the ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Chandler of Belchertown, assisted by Dr. Charles E. Hesselgrave (Middlebury '93) of South Manchester, Conn. Two other Middlebury graduates were among the guests. The couple will reside in Utica, N. Y., where Mr. Hubbard is connected with the law firm of Kernan & Kernan.
